There are big changes coming to who can access supports, and how this will be done. It can be really confusing to keep track of, and we want to find out from you how we can help.

There are LOTS of changes happening and yet to happen with NDIS supports, with significant change coming for children and families. This will impact all children and families, not just those who are currently receiving NDIS funding. This is the biggest reform since the NDIS was introduced over 10 years ago, so we really want to make sure that you know about these changes, and your voice is heard.

Here's what we are doing to have a say in the future of supports for children and families.

You may have heard, Strong Minds Psychology are part of a consortium of seven allied health services across NSW, VIC and QLD. Together we are Yellow Ukulele, and we are currently advocating for, and engaging in, conversations about the future of supports and services for children and families.

To help us with this advocacy work, we have a favour to ask..... Could you spare us five minutes to complete a short survey? We would love to hear from you.

With the data collected across all seven services, we will represent your collective views and concerns. Be part of shaping the future and click the link below.
